科目英文名稱：Greek Mythology

教學目標(中文)

This course in Greek Mythology introduces students to the Greek world view from which the myths developed. Students will learn the definition of myth and how myths are different from legends and fairy tales. Key myths will be covered in the class such as the myths of creation, the Titans, the Olympians, and the creation of fire and man and woman. Lessons will deal with the twelve Olympians, the Labors of Hercules, Heroes of the Trojan War, Stories of Love, places/locations in Greek mythology such as Mt. Olympus and the Underworld, and famous figures from myths that appear in Greek tragedies. Excerpts from the Iliad and the Odyssey will be studied. Students also will become familiar with terms and names from Greek mythology found in popular culture such as advertisements and movies. Students will perform some Greek myths that have been written as Readers Theater presentations.
